You should activate only one of Gravity Forms, Add-on or the other Download and install. Install (cancel) the other Add-on. Try to add both this Add-ons on your site. Option #1: Adding both Add-ons When you activate multiple Add-ons then you have to include different Javascript IDs in the Add-ons UI. If you get the same IDs, the scripts are conflicting and the Add-ons will not work. Get a different ID for each Add-on. Option #2: Adding Gravity Forms with Add-on You can also add the Add-on by choosing the modal from Gravity Forms and including the ID of the Add-on on the modal. Uninstall all the Add-ons you don't need. Option #3: Uninstalling Add-on The third option is to uninstall the Add-on, but, then, you will lose the preferences/settings you may have created on your site. Shear forces applied to the knee joint during abduction and flexion: a Cadaver Study. Pain in the anterior compartment of the knee is a common complaint after total knee replacement, and the anterior cruciate ligament (ACL) is a potential source of this pain. A large number of clinical studies reported that ACL deficiency is a significant risk factor for anterior knee pain in total knee arthroplasty. The purpose of this study was to determine the force generated by posterior and anterior structures on the lateral side of the knee joint in normal and deficient knee specimens during abduction and flexion. Force measurements were used to correlate the shear forces with the forces generated by the bony structures. The knees of 28 fresh cadavers were studied. The lateral condyle
